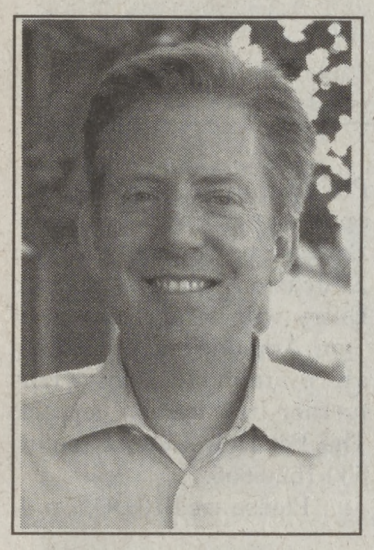
FPPC finds no 'conflict of interest' for Johannessen



Mark Johannessen
City Councilman

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The state's Fair Political Practices Commission has rejected the second of two complaints filed by former West Sacramento Mayor Greg Potnick against current city council member Mark Johannessen. The commission found "no conflict of interest" in Johannessen's actions.

The complaint, filed Oct. 1, alleged that Johannessen had violated conflict-of-interest laws by voting on a city council agenda item in August that concerned a proposed development project. Johannessen had been previously been advised by the city attorney and FPPC not to vote on matters related to "Vina del Lago," a project looking for city approval just south of current city limits. Johannessen owned property within 500 feet of the project's original borders.

But the FPPC determined that no conflict existed at the time of the August 20 vote. Vina del Lago had moved its border away from Johannessen's real estate. At that time, said the FPPC, Johannessen's property "was located more than 500 feet from the boundary of the Vina del Lago project,"

"There is no conflict of interest here," opined FPPC counsel Daniel Neal in a March 16 letter.

The complaint was filed in the heat of last fall's campaign season, as Johannessen was running (unsuccessfully) against incumbent Christopher Cabaldon for the mayor's seat.

"The point of the law is to prevent a politician from making a decision that would enhance or affect a politician's property," Johannessen commented yesterday. "The project applicant did change the map controlling the project and (the property) was outside that limit."

He said that the accusation became fodder for the mayor's race campaign as the claims were repeated.

"During the heat of a campaign, you get hit with these things," added Johannessen. "All of these allegations come out in campaign materials. (The News-Ledger) published a story on it, but of course the Sacramento Bee didn't touch it."

Johannessen was asked if he was a "supporter" of the Vina del Lago project.

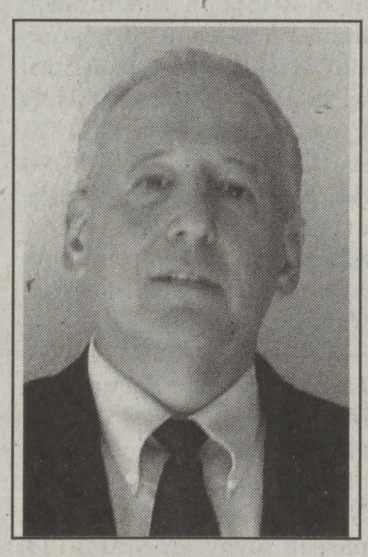
"I would characterize myself as wanting to see that project 'on the table,'" said Johannessen, "I want to see any project that may have amenities for West Sacramento, or flood control opportunities discussed. . . instead of having them summarily dismissed."

Vina del Lago has been waging an uphill fight for city council approval. Did the developers change their map to allow him to participate in council deliberations?

"I don't think so," answered Johannessen. "I can't see anybody doing that for this kind of purpose. I'm just one vote on the council."

Potnick said he still has a problem with the propriety of Johannessen's August 20 vote.

"I'm still stuck at the conundrum of how do you get from the 'old' project which was certainly within the 500-foot boundary of his property to the 'new' project. That's a step that required an affirmative action on the council's part."



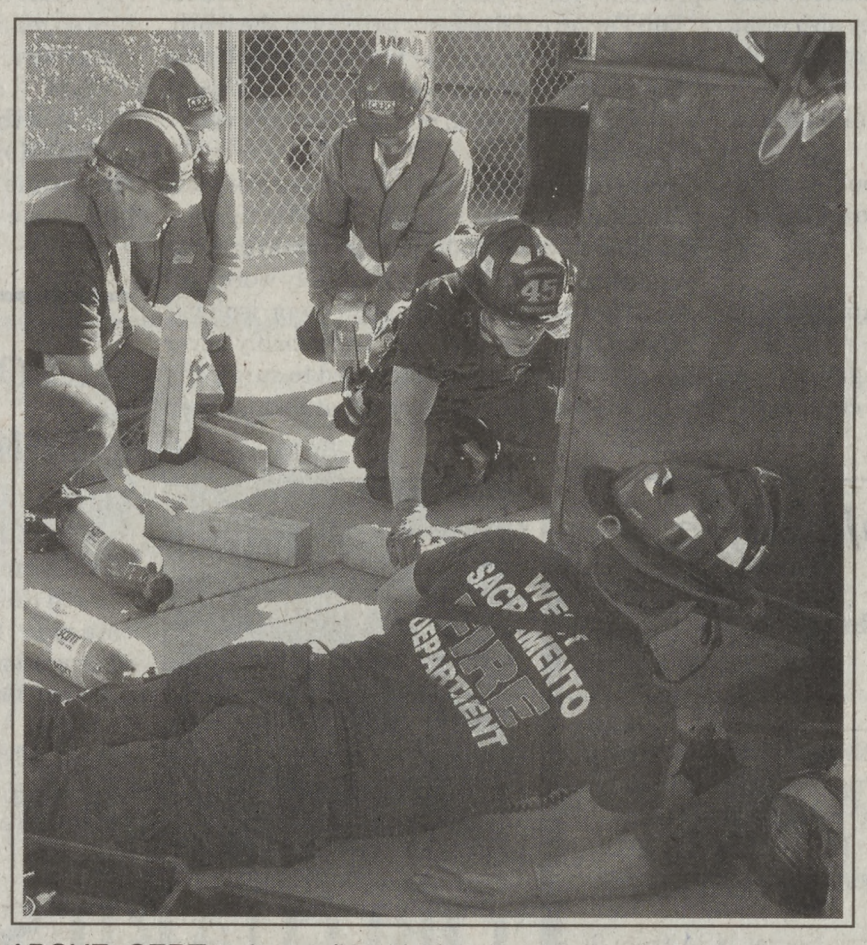
Greg Potnick
Former city councilman & mayor who filed an FPPC complaint

Potnick said he is a "supporter" of Mayor Christopher Cabaldon, Johannessen's political opponent last fall. But he said his complaints to the FPPC had nothing to do with the campaign.

"I've always been opposed to 'leapfrog' development, and this has to do with the city growing in an orderly manner," said Potnick. "No, it wasn't part of a campaign against him. I would file this against any elected official who acted in that manner."

Potnick, who served on the council from 1988-2000, said he is considering whether to engage an attorney to challenge the FPPC decision.

Training for the next catastrophe



ABOVE: CERT trainees (in vests) help shore up a Dumpster to 'rescue' a dummy trapped underneath (lower right)

The West Sacramento Fire Department graduated its first class of 16 "Certified Emergency Response Team" (CERT) members on Saturday. The new team members are volunteers from throughout the city.

"The 16 showed up and then went through the full 20-hour class," said Division Chief Gary Fredericksen. "The idea is to first team them how to take care of themselves in an emergency – turn the gas off, turn the power off – and then have them take care of their neighbors. After that, they can report to the fire department to help."

In the event of a flood or other major problem, the CERT members could be called on to do "light search and rescue" work, help administer medical help, or generally support fire crews.

"I could see using them in an earthquake, when you would want them shutting off gas and electricity, and maybe we could use them to go house to house in the event of an evacuation."

The CERT members will do ongoing drill work to continue learning.

A couple more classes are planned for 2009, to build the city's base of CERT volunteers. The next session will start in May.

Anyone interested in the CERT program may call 617-4600.

Three strikes: 109-years-plus for shooting

A Colorado man has received 109 years to life for shooting at three bail bond recovery agents who pursued him to a West Sacramento motel room.

Robero Barron, Jr., 54, was convicted in December of two counts of attempted murder, two counts of assault with a firearm and one count of possession of a firearm by a felon.

On Feb. 15, 2006, the three bail recovery agents tried to enter Barron's hotel room in West Sacramento. Barron had jumped bail in Colorado for attempted murder and another charge.

Barron fired on them, but no one was hurt.

Judge Dave Rosenberg sentenced him March 25 under the "three strikes" law.

City's first historical landmark unveiled

From Louisa Vessell
West Sacramento Historical Society

The first West Sacramento State Registered Historical Landmark will be unveiled today at 10 a.m. on River Walk Park.

The plaque will commemmorate the location of the first salmon cannery on the Pacific coast, built by Hapgood, Hume, and Company.

In 1864, Hapgood, Hume, and Company founded California's first salmon cannery in Washington (now West Sacramento) on a barge moored on the banks of the Sacramento River. The small canning operation was the beginning of the salmon canning industry on the West Coast. Salmon caught in the Sacramento River were canned by the cooker-boiler method, rather than the salt preservation method commonly used at that time. The new process allowed for wider markets and lower prices. In 1866, because of declining salmon runs in the Sacramento River, Hapgood, Hume and Company moved their canning operation to the Columbia River in Oregon.

David Hume, great-grandson of one of the cannery's founders, will attend the unveiling.

The bronze plaque is erected near the site of the cannery behind the ziggurat building on the levee near the Veteran's Plaza (South Ramp) and is California Registered Historical Landmark No. 1040. The plaque was made possible through a Project Pride collaboration of the California State Parks, City of West Sacramento, River Cats Foundation, West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce and the West Sacramento Historical Society. To date, the only other state landmarks in Yolo County are in Woodland.

For information contact Thom Lewis, Cannery State Landmark Coordinator for the West Sacramento Historical Society at 916-653-2942 work or 916-372-7438 home.

City may re-think Stone Lock project

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The master plan for 200 acres of West Sacramento waterfront will get another look and possibly some serious editing, in light of a real estate market that has drastically changed since the plan was drafted.

That's what Val Toppenberg, the city's redevelopment agency director, told the News-Ledger on Monday. West Sacramento has engaged The Cordish Company to be a partner in maximizing the value of publicly-owned acreage along the city's barge canal and river. But the first draft of that plan may be obsolete.

"The question has arisen: does it still make sense to move ahead with the concept developed last year?" said Toppenberg. "Part of the project was proposed to be a residential component, and in the current market, that probably doesn't make sense anymore. We have an obligation to look at all aspects of the project."

Will Cordish be involved in any re-write?

"Cordish has been a good partner, and they have a good plan for that property, but there is certainly nothing sacred about that plan."

In the meantime, "there is a lot of rethinking going on," he added, and "it's probably not as urgent as it was for the Cordish Company to move ahead. Things have certainly slowed down."

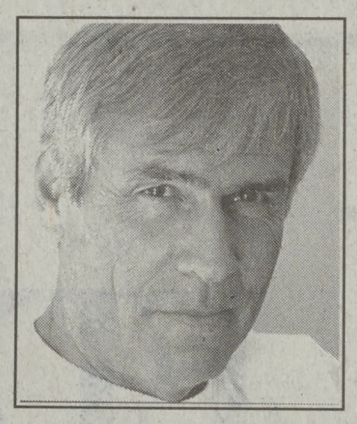
The preliminary plan called for housing, retail, parks and a marina, to be built under a partnering agreement.

The city has termed the mixed-use project "The Stone Lock District," honoring the now unused set of locks that carry Jefferson Blvd. across the barge canal. Land adjacent to the locks is part of the project area.

The Cordish Company has been involved in other mixed-use and "infill" projects around the country, including Baltimore's "Inner Harbor," Houston's "Bayou Place" Atlantic City's "The Walk," Charleston's "Charleston Place," and Louisville's "Fourth Street Live," Kansas City's nine-block "Power & Light District" and St. Louis's "Ballpark Village."

One man's answer to improving his love life

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

I try to keep in pretty regular touch with some of the guys I served with in Vietnam and last night's phone chat with one of them was great fun, as is always the case. I had called to check on the health of my former squad leader, who has recently been diagnosed with diabetes. He's an honest, straight-talking man with a great sense of humor and more well-earned valor medals than you can shake a stick at, and part of our lengthy conversation went a little something like this:

"So," I said, "I hear the VA doctors have you back in their clutches again."

"What can I say? I'm not getting any younger you know – and neither are you by the way!"

"So," I asked, "did they give you pills for the diabetes, or are they going to make you take shots?"

"Just pills for now, but you know how that goes. Plus I'm really going to have to be careful about what I eat for the first time in my life, which isn't going to be easy. And they also want me to take a class on how to give myself shots just in case."

"But you're already taking more pills than a man can count," I reminded him.

"Tell me about it! How about you? Are you taking the pills you're supposed to for all the crap that's wrong with you?"

"No, not really," I admitted.

"Well, then, I don't want you complaining to me if I out-live you."

"So, is this new diabetes diagnosis got something to do with all the other circulation problems you've had over the years?" I asked.

"Oh, I'm sure it does, but to tell you the truth, some of those problems have been getting a little better, and the doctors can't figure out why. I guess I'm kind of a medical marvel."

"How so?

"Well, for instance, they did a bunch of tests to see if I'm getting enough blood up into my head and discovered that the two main arteries responsible for doing that are barely working."

"But that's a pretty serious problem, isn't it?"

"Damn right, but they said I'd probably never make it off the table if they tried to surgically fix it, so we all kinda agreed that I'd just keep taking all these pills and hope for the best. The head doctor said that my circulatory system is still somehow getting the blood where it's supposed to go – especially to my legs now – and recommended that we probably shouldn't mess around with a good thing, and since I've already had open heart surgery and all that fun stuff, I agreed with him."

"What about symptoms," I asked. "Do you get dizzy or anything like that from not enough blood getting to your brain?"

"Only if I turn my head too far to either side," he said, laughing.

"Well, you don't sound too worried."

"Why worry? The last I heard, none of us are going to get out of this thing alive, and I figure I should have already been dead a couple of times over in Vietnam."

"More times than that," I reminded him, recalling some of the scary scrapes our little Aero Rifle Platoon always seemed to get itself into so many years ago.

"Anyway, it's all free time now – right?"

"Right," I answered.

"Most of the World War II vets are gone now, and the Korean vets and us Vietnam vets are next in line, and that's just a fact of life. I really had some of those VA nurses laughing, though."

'How so?"

"Well, during my last checkup, the subject somehow turned to my love life – I guess I brought it up because of all these darn circulatory problems – and one of the nurses suggested that the best thing I could do for my love life was to stop smoking."

"Hey," I said, "I bet that's true, because I read somewhere that the nicotine in cigarettes shrinks blood vessels, and shrinking blood vessels can't be good for anyone's love life."

"One of the doctors said I really need to stop smoking, too, but when I asked him if he could guarantee me that I'd live another ten or twenty years if I did, he said he couldn't guarantee me anything close to that, so I told him I probably wouldn't be quitting any time soon."

"Then what happened?"

"Well, then one of the nurses asked me if I wasn't going to quit smoking, then just what did I plan on doing to help improve my sex life."

"And what did you say?"

"I told her I was going to try real hard to stop dating so many ugly women."

River City tennis nips rival

From River City High School

Two undefeated Capital Valley Conference (CVC) tennis teams squared off last Friday as River City traveled to West Campus with first place on the line. The visiting Raiders emerged victorious, 5-4 as the mixed doubles team of Phi Dinh and Lai Saetern clinched the overall match with their 10-5 win.

RC dropped #2 boys singles and #1 boys doubles, but Jim Saetern cruised to a 6-2,6-1 victory in the top boys singles match and the #1 girls doubles duo of Ranika Prasad and Sarah Aguilar won 10-6 to even the days score at 2-all. The Raiders went up 4-2 with a sweep of the girls singles contests as Lydia Maystruk (#1) and Marisa Arellano (#2) lost just five games combined. A defeat at #2 boys doubles trimmed the lead to 4-3, but Dinh and Lai Saetern pulled away from their opponents in mixed to earn the crucial fifth win of the afternoon

Prior to the showdown at West Campus, the Raiders dispatched Sacramento Country Day (SCD) 8-1 and Rio Linda 7-2. Jim Saetern won both times at #1 boys

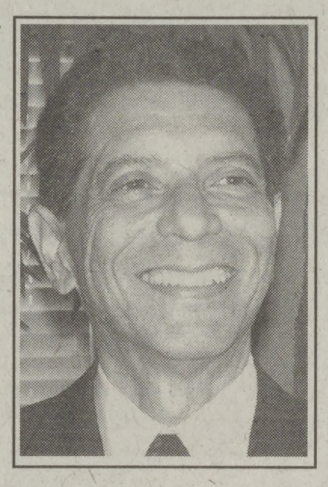
SPORTS INSIDER



By Richard Novoa

The "Big Dance" is set for Saturday, April 4th in the Motor City with estimates of more than 100,000 visitors visiting the city during the "Final Four" weekend. The 2009 NCAA tournament will pump about $30-$50 million into Detroit's bad economy and with the Michigan State Spartans reaching the final four; it should pick up the cities moral and spark some hometown hospitality.

The Final Four teams playing for the National Championship will be the North Carolina Tar Heels against the Villanova Wildcats and the Connecticut Huskies taking on the home town favorite Michigan State Spartans.

Let's breakdown the final four teams and analyze which two teams will meet on Monday, April 6th (6:21 p.m.) in the final waltz and be crowned the NCAA National Basketball Champion!

The underdog Spartans, who will play UConn, has had the most Final Four appearance (5) since 1999 with UNC second with four and UConn is tied for third with three. None of the four teams won its conference tournament this season, which means no team unbeatable. Each team is well coached with three of the four coaches winning national championships.

The No. 2 seeded Michigan State (30-6, 15-3 Big Ten, first) are playing in their home state, which doesn't happen often in the Final Four. Their karma will be huge and in its favors Michigan State because the Spartans, who won the national title 30 years ago with Earvin "Magic" Johnson leading the way, will be celebrating the event because the NCAA plans to honor Magic during a tournament ceremony!

This game won't be easy because the No. 1 seeded Connecticut (31-4, 15-3 Big East, T-2 in conference) Huskies and their coach Jim Calhoun are looking to win their third national title. Also, the Huskies have the biggest man in the tournament in 7-foot-3 Hasheem Thabeet, who was the Big East Player of the Year. No team in the Final Four has someone like Thabeet. If he plays true to his size and disrupts enough shots, whether by blocking, altering or scaring them from being taken, the Huskies can win the title.

In the other matchup the No. 1 North Carolina (32-4, 13-3 ACC, first) are lead by senior Tyler Hansbrough, the 2007-08 national player of the year, who is looking to close out his college career with a national title. Their coach Roy Williams is attempting to win his second national title as a coach.

The Tar Heels are going for their fifth national title and recently named ACC player of the year Ty Lawson may have the inside track on being the MVP of the NCAA tournament so far. The Tar Heels are the only team heading to Detroit with players who have competed in a Final Four. UNC was beaten by Kansas a year ago in San Antonio so the Tar Heels should be motivated.

So, in comes the Cinderella team in the Villanova (30-7, 13-5 Big East, fourth) Wildcats to play the tournament favorite UNC. Villanova is making its first Final Four appearance since Rollie Massimino's eighth-seeded Wildcats shocked the Las Vegas sports books in 1985 with a title game victory over mighty Georgetown. Enough talk, it's time for me to choose who I think is going to be in the final dance and be crowned the National Champion on Monday night!

The Wildcats (+7 ½) have zero pressure to win the title and will be loose as a goose but I'm afraid I have to go with the top-seeded North Carolina, who won't disappoint President Obama, who picked the Tar Heels to win the whole enchilada.

In the other game, Michigan State (-4 ½) will be playing as the home team against Connecticut and as the favorite, are expected to be in the Final Four. The Spartans will rise to the occasion and win in an overtime thriller.

In the final game on Monday I envision a classic title game between the home town favorite Spartans and the Obama inspired UNC Tar Heels. UNC played at Ford Field in December in the ACC-Big Ten Challenge and walloped Michigan State but this time the Spartan will cut down the nets. Michigan State upsets President Obama's office pool and wins the NCAA Championship! Michigan State 89 – UNC 88.

Kings Korner

The Kings (16-56) put together a beautiful game last Sunday night beating Shaq and the Suns 126-118 but the big game watch will be on at home on Tuesday, March 31st (7 p.m.) night against New Orleans when the Kings retire Vlade Divac's jersey. Vlade's No. 21 will hang from the rafters alongside Chris Webbers No. 4 and the rest of the Kings legends.

The Kings will bus down to Oakland on Wednesday night to play the Warriors and then fly off to Phoenix on Friday before they return to the Arco Arena on Sunday to host the Warriors. Kobe Bryant and the Lakers will be in town on Tuesday, April 7th (7 p.m.) followed by the Ron Artest and the Rockets on Thursday night (7 p.m.). Kings, who only have four home games left on the schedule, will close out the season on April 12th against San Antonio.

NFL Notes

The NFL as released the schedule of pre-season games with exact the times and dates be release in mid-April along with the regular schedules.

Tell your story -- in six words

From Beth Gabor
Yolo County Public Information Officer

In Yolo County, National Library Week (April 12-18) is being celebrated the entire month of April. The national observance, held since 1958 and sponsored by the American Library Association and libraries across the country, is a time to celebrate the contributions of libraries, librarians and library workers in schools, campuses and communities nationwide. This year's national theme is "Worlds connect @ your library."

In honor of both National Library Week and National Poetry Month, the Yolo County library would like to hear the stories of county residents in six words. "My Six Words" is a project inspired by the book "Not Quite What I Was Planning: Six-Word Memoirs by Writers Famous and Obscure." Edited by Rachel Fershleiser and Larry Smith, this collection includes contributions from well-known personalities such as writer Dave Eggers ("Fifteen years since last professional haircut."), singer Aimee Mann ("Couldn't cope so I wrote songs."), and comedian Stephen Colbert ("Well, I thought it was funny."). The Yolo County Library is encouraging community members to similarly describe their favorite library experience, in six words, and to present it in a handwritten, typed or pictorial manner (six pictures).

"In these challenging economic times, librarians still continue to help people of all ages and backgrounds find and interpret the information they need to live, learn and work," said Yolo County Board of Supervisor Chair Mike McGowan. "Worlds do connect in our libraries. Those are my six words. What are your six words? What is your favorite library experience, author, book or librarian? What does the library mean to you?"

Yolo County Library staff have already begun working on the "My Six Words" project by capturing library life in six words which include: Movies and music, but mostly books; Come one, come all, free information; Just ask, I'll try to answer; and My swell career as a librarian. During the month of April community members are encouraged to stop by any Yolo County Library branch and add their six words or photographs to the displays.

"Everyday, libraries in big cities and small towns, in colleges and universities, and within schools and businesses help transform our communities," says Yolo County Librarian Patty Wong. "In Yolo County, people of all backgrounds come together at the library for a variety of programs and services including, pre-school story time, Internet access, exposure to literature through the Read Around Yolo book bags for book clubs, or adult literacy services through the YoloReads program."

For more information about the Yolo County Library, programs and services, and branch locations, call (530) 666-8055 or visit www.yolocountylibrary.org. Note: some library branch locations will be closed for a short period in April due to Yolo County staff furloughs. Visit www.yolocounty-library.org for more information

BOAT HOUSES WILL LIKELY BE ORDERED FARTHER DOWN STREAM

During the past week employes of the State Board of Health have been taking names and locations of all boat houses on the river south of the Washington intake.

There are no boat houses north of this intake and the evident purpose is to order these boat houses farther down stream so that the water for home consumption in Washington and Sacramento may not be soiled.

The owners of these boat houses are expecting to receive notice at any time to move below the M street bridge and probably as far south as Y street.

"Distillery and machinery will be taken to Cuba."

Such is the expression we read almost every day.

The last is that of the Old Jordan Distillery of Harrisburg, Kentucky, where 300 men were regularly employed, and which paid millions of dollars annually to the government in revenue.

STOCKTON TRACTOR COMPANY FACTORY DEFINITELY LOCATED IN WEST SACRAMENTO

ANOTHER UNIT IN THE INDUSTRIAL CENTER OF THE CAPITAL CITY WILL ADD TO THE POPULATION OF YOLO COUNTY AND BRING OTHER IMPROVEMENTS

Although three sites were in view by the Stockton Tractor Co. for their factory in or near the Capitol City, it was announced last week in the Independent that in all likelihood the final location would be in West Sacramento.

The Independent was the only paper to announce that the factory would be located west of the Sacramento River.

Last Wednesday a confirmation came from the company through its President and General Manager Glanville Hart and its sales manager H. E. Myers.

The location of the Stockton Tractor Company in West Sacramento will add another industry to this section of Yolo County which means a great deal to property owners and residents here.

The first purchase of land was in the amount of 4 acres with an option on 4½ acres more later on from the West Sacramento Company.

The site is immediately north of the land owned by the United States Fibre Products Company and fronting on the county road leading to West Sacramento.

The site is convenient to rail and water transportation and a spur track is to be built into the grounds by the San Francisco and Sacramento Railroad, or the Oakland-Antioch.

This site is less than half a mile from Front and M streets in Sacramento and is closer to the Sacramento Postoffice than 28th street.

Plans for the factory are now being completed by Architest Fred S. Harrison, who is rushing the work so that a start can be made on the buildings as soon as possible.

Following completion of the plans the first unit of the building measuring 60x200 feet will be completed in less than 40 days.

The owners of the factory expect to turn out two or three tractors daily with about 30 men employed. Later on as demand requires other units will be added to the factory so that eventually not less than 100 mechanics will find employment in the plant.

The Stockton Tractor Factory has the complete indorsement of the Chamber of Commerce of Sacramento, because it has been a growing concern, turning out an implement of practical use for farmers and is even now a success so far as practical work goes.

Even at this time the factory has orders for all the goods it can turn out within a year after a start is made.

In all likelihood actual construction of tractors in the West Sacramento factory will commence between the 1st and 15th of October.

START ON COUNTY HIGHWAY WORK EXPECTED NEXT MONDAY

The contract let two weeks ago by the Board of Supervisors of Yolo County to the McGillivray Construction Co. of Sacramento will materialize next Monday when the contractors will get in the field with material and gangs of men.

Stakes have been driven for the road and grading will start immediately at a point west of Sixth street.

It is understood that the right of way asked by the Supervisors from the Southern Pacific Company north of the railroad tracks and between Third and Sixth streets, has not yet been granted, but unless granted condemnation proceedings will be entered at once.

This is the most important stretch of roadway where some deep fills will have to be made and for which material will be secured from the corporation.

This will be a great blessing to upriver farmers to get the Riverbank road in some kind of shape because at the present time it is in terrible condition. Great quantities of produce are being hauled over this road daily that has placed the road in practically an unsafe condition.

Greater quantities are yet to come from the rich ranches north of town and the necessity for improvement is drastic.

The McGillivray Construction Co. has promised that in so far as possible only local help will be employed on the road when it is procurable.

Two mililon dollars worth of liquor were confiscated in Chicago the other day and in the last six months two and a half million dollars worth were stolen in Chicago.

Oh, Gawd, what a shame to destroy good things.

It is no wonder perhaps that hard working people turn to Socialism when they read:

"Hearse, five coaches and fifteen-piece band at funeral of a canary."

But adding insult to injury the story read "a plush lined casket contained the remains of the little songster."

They may become anarchists farther down when they read:

"The cobbler plans to erect a monument later on."

"MY AUTO 'TIS OF THEE"

Immediately following the end of the school term Principal A. L. Case started to devote some of his spare time toward repairing his Buick, and since that time has done considerable work to put the machine in order.

Mr. Case loves this old car with which he has traveled around the Hawaiian Islands, Guam and several other of the South Sea Islands.

Having the car all apart a few days ago and contemplating the different parts under the shade of a big fig tree, he got thinking and composed the following:

My auto, 'tis of thee,
Short cut to poverty,
Of thee I chant.
I blew a pile of dough
On you two years ago,
And now you refuse to go,
Or won't or can't.

Through town and countryside,
You were my joy and pride,
A happy day.
I love thy gaudy hue,
The nice white tires so new,
But now you're down and through,
In every way.

To thee, old rattlebox,
Came many bumps and knocks,
For thee I grieve.
Badly thy top is torn,
Frayed are the seats and worn,
A whooping affects thy horn,
I do believe.

Thy motor has the grip,
Thy spark plug has the pip,
And woe is thine,
I, too, have suffered chills,
Ague and kindred ills,
Endeavoring to pay my bills,
Since thou wert mine.

News-Ledger Editorial:

A streetcar & a port

West Sacramento wants the new inter-city streetcar project to happen even more than Sacramento does, even though most of the track would be on the Sacramento side of the river.

The project would largely be paid for by taxes on property alongside the streetcar's route. The goal, say planners, is to introduce an urban streetcar system as a catalyst to raise the quality of future development along this route. This is what streetcars have done for other urban areas, they say.

The project will take cooperation from the cities on both sides of the river, as well as from affected landowners.

Sacramento's city council was scheduled to vote on the next actions for the streetcar project last week. The agenda item was postponed. A spokesperson for the streetcar project told the News-Ledger that streetcar discussion may be delayed "a few months," as Sacramento finds itself confronted with "other priorities" in this hard economy.

In this economy, there's no hurry for a streetcar system. It can wait. But let's hope the project eventually gets back on track.

Let's play "what if" for a moment:

What if Sacramento was still the majority owner of the struggling Port of Sacramento here in West Sacramento? How would support for the port rank on the list of Sacramento's current priorities?

The city and the county of Sacramento are now struggling to fund things like law enforcement and libraries during this severe downturn. Even in good economic times, they showed little interest in committing resources for the future of the port. Is there any reason to believe they would be strong backers of the port now, if they were still in charge?

The port is currently bleeding about $1.5 million per year – but it has the strong support of West Sacramento's city government and redevelopment agency. This city is in control and is committed to expanding both shipping and leasing opportunities. Did Sacramento ever give any indication it would fight this hard for the port if it remained in charge?

Several years ago, West Sacramento – and particularly Mayor Cabaldon – struggled to make a deal to take over the port from the folks across the river. There were those who objected loudly. Some of those folks – including representatives of the labor unions employed at the port – claimed Cabaldon and West Sacramento secretly wanted to "kill" the port by taking it over. And they were quite vociferous about their viewpoint.

Isn't it obvious by now that they were flat-out wrong? Isn't it obvious that the worst thing that could have happened to the port would have been for these people to succeed in "protecting" it from West Sac?

Letters to the Editor

A force to be reckoned with

We were at a City Council meeting a couple/three weeks ago, making a presentation, when Mayor Cabaldon noted that "They" (meaning our Bryte & Broderick Community Action Group) have become a 'force' to be reckoned with in the community.

My response? Why, now that you mention it, I guess we have. (This is a good thing, to my way of thinking.)

The question is: A force for what? We are a "force" for giving voice to a community which has felt (rightly or wrongly) left behind when it comes to many of the amenities we've observed being showered on other areas of this city since it's incorporation. We are a "force" for gathering information from our residents regarding our needs, hopes, gripes and aspirations (our "Vision", if you will) for our community's betterment. We are a "force" for marshaling resources for community projects, i.e.: people, places, products and things. We are a "force" for bridging the gap (although it may seem, at times, a "chasm") between our community and those who make the decisions that affect us; be they local, state or federal - public, or private - entities. We are not looking to compete with other community groups, organizations or associations within this city, but, rather to join forces with them whenever possible, so that we all may "Lift ourselves up by our bootstraps", as it were.

At the same time, we are a "force" that is trying to help our community keep it's unique identity and self respect, without becoming a homogenous, bland (a "pale" by comparison) clone of some other place, (enter your least favorite "other place" here). If I may rephrase: "We get our respect the old fashioned way - we earn it."

The idea of Go Figure is to arrive at the figures given at the bottom and right-hand columns of the diagram by following the arithmetic signs in the order they are given (that is, from left to right and top to bottom). Use only the numbers below the diagram to complete its blank squares and use each of the nine numbers only once.

COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS

BY DNA SMITH

PICK OF THE WEEK

"Slumdog Millionaire" — Winner of eight Academy Awards (including Best Picture), "Slumdog Millionaire" is an uplifting tale of love and triumph set against the backdrop of the violent and poverty-stricken streets of Mumbai, India.

The film opens with a young man, Jamal (Dev Patel), who is on the Indian version of "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire?". He has answered every question correctly and is only one answer away from winning the grand prize. Because Jamal is an orphan and comes from such a poor background, it is assumed that he is somehow cheating, so he is brutally interrogated by the police to find out how he can possibly know the answers to such hard questions.

And so the film unfolds in a series of flashbacks of events in Jamal's life that illustrate how he came to know the answers to questions — from the death of his mother, which leaves Jamal and his brother homeless and poor on the streets of Mumbai, to their escape from a Fagin-like character who wants to lead the boys into a life of crime, to Jamal's search for his lost childhood-love Latika (Freida Pinto).

"Slumdog Millionaire" is an amazing movie that mixes humor and brutality without compromising the integrity of the characters, and still manages to get away with a Bollywood dance number at the end. Brilliant.

ALSO OF NOTE

"The IT Crowd: The Complete Season One" — One of Britain's funniest TV series is finally on DVD in America. Until now fans had to resort to illicit Internet downloads or ponying up the cash to watch the show on IFC.

Written and directed by Graham Linehan ("Father Ted"), "The IT Crowd" is a hilarious sitcom that revolves around the misadventures of two socially inept geeks who work for the IT support team of a huge multinational corporation that is run by a complete moron. If you're a fan of British comedies like "The Mighty Boosh" or

Dev Patel and Freida Pinto star in "Slumdog Millionaire"

Peanut Butter and Jam Bars

Kids and adults will gobble up these peanutty shortbread bars. Just remember to serve them with milk!

- 1 cup butter (no substitutions), softened
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup creamy peanut butter
- 1 large egg
- 3 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 cup salted dry roasted peanuts, coarsely chopped
- 1 cup grape or strawberry jam

1. Preheat oven to 350 F. Grease 13-by-9-inch metal baking pan. Line pan with foil; grease foil.

2. In large bowl, with mixer at low speed, beat butter and sugar until mixed, occasionally scraping bowl with rubber spatula. Increase speed to high; beat until light and fluffy. Reduce speed to low; beat in peanut butter, then egg until well combined, occasionally scraping bowl. Beat in flour just until evenly moistened (dough will be crumbly). Beat in peanuts.

3. Reserve 2 cups dough. Press remaining dough evenly onto bottom of pan. Spread jam over dough in pan. With hand, press reserved dough into large chunks (about 3/4-inch) and sprinkle over jam, leaving spaces between chunks; do not pat down.

4. Bake 45 to 50 minutes, until golden. Cool completely in pan on wire rack.

5. When cool, transfer with foil to cutting board. Cut lengthwise into three strips, then cut each strip crosswise into eight bars. Yields 12 (2 bar) servings.

Go Down Together: The True, Untold Story of Bonnie and Clyde
by Jeff Guinn
(Simon & Schuster, $27)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

Straight up, this is the best book ever written about Bonnie and Clyde.

In 1934, Bonnie Parker and Clyde Barrow were killed in an ambush on a country road in Louisiana. Since then, there have been countless articles about them in true-crime magazines, dozens of books and even an Oscar-winning film that featured Warren Beatty and Faye Dunaway.

Myths quickly overtook the facts, leaving most Americans believing that Bonnie and Clyde epitomized glamour, coolness under fire and criminal brilliance as they wreaked havoc upon Middle America during the early years of the Great Depression.

In reality, according to author Jeff Guinn, Bonnie and Clyde were two poor kids from a Dallas slum. They were both cripples, and far from living the good life in luxurious hotels, they spent much of their time camping out in their car, eating cans of cold beans and bathing in streams. Far from being criminal masterminds, they bungled almost every stickup they attempted. Guinn contends they killed mostly out of panic, and their doom was sealed when a pragmatic lawman was hired to hunt them down. Their story ended in an ambush on a dirt road outside a no-place town on May 23, 1934.

Drawing on the memoirs of Frank Hamer, the lawman who was determined to bring Bonnie and Clyde down, FBI documents obtained through the Freedom of Information Act and other rare original source materials, the author re-creates the event-filled 102 days during which Hamer and his posse stalked and eventually killed the couple.

Much like today's cable TV news networks, the newspapers of the period served up outrageous stories about them in order to boost circulation — making it difficult for the historians that followed. This highly readable biography presents Bonnie and Clyde as they really were and comes as close to the actual truth as we are likely to get, especially after the passage of nearly 75 years.

The great trouble with baseball today is that most of the players are in the game for the money and that's it, not for the love of it, the excitement of it, the thrill of it.
